

```

1  """
2  Christopher Craig
3  CSD-325, Module 7
4  |
5  city_functions.py - defines a function that formats
6  country into a single readable string, then calls it
7  to demonstrate it working.
8  """
9
10
11 def city_country(city, country, language=None, popul
12     """Return 'City, Country', optionally followed b
13     figure and/or a language."""
14     formatted = f"{city.title()}, {country.title()}"
15     if population:
16         formatted += f" - population {population}"
17     if language:
18         formatted += f", {language.title()}"
19     return formatted
20
21
22 if __name__ == "__main__":
23     print(city_country("santiago", "chile"))
24     print(city_country("tokyo", "japan", population=
25     print(city_country("paris", "france", language="

```

Santiago, Chile
Tokyo, Japan - population 37400000
Paris, France - population 2161000,
French

```

1  """
2  Christopher Craig
3  CSD-325, Module 7
4
5  test_cities.py - unit tests for the city_country() function defined
6  in city_functions.py.
7  """
8  import unittest
9
10 from city_functions import city_country
11
12
13 class CityCountryTestCase(unittest.TestCase):
14     """Tests for the city_country() function."""
15
16     def test_city_country(self):
17         """Do two simple names, like Santiago and Chile, work?"""
18         result = city_country("santiago", "chile")
19         self.assertEqual(result, "Santiago, Chile")
20
21
22 if __name__ == "__main__":
23     unittest.main()

```

Traceback (most recent call last):
File "/box/main.py", line 10, in <module>
from city_functions import city_country
ModuleNotFoundError: No module named 'city_functions'